At Home Access to Practice and Training Tests for the Spring CAASPP Assessments

Our students are continuing to prepare for the CAASPP summative assessment in the spring. You can support your student at home by taking practice and training tests that you can access online at the CAASPP website. This also gives you the opportunity to see the kind of questions that your students will be answering and it helps your student become more familiar and comfortable with the testing process.

There are two web links that I would like students and parents to check out at home together.

1. This is a video of how students can use the embedded universal tools on the CAASPP tests.

2. You can go to this website for information on the CAASPP testing and access all of the practice and training tests from home. We recommend that students practice as many of these tests as they can so that they are familiar with the language and structure of the test.
